

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

NEW STYLES IN BUSINESS, FROCK AND DRESS SUITS FOR MEN.

Accessories of Lace and Ribbon for Plain Toilet—Mrs. Cleveland Sets a Fashion in Hair Dressing—Fashions in Mitts.

The mantle, of which both a back and front view is here represented, is of black repp silk, with a lining of plaid taffeta in bright colors.

REPPED SILK MANTLE.

It is trimmed with black velvet, embroidery in silk and jet, jet passementerie ornaments and black lace. The back forms and a tapering plastron on the front are embroidered in silk and jet beads, and narrow stripes of embroidery are on the sleeve fronts, each terminating in a jet ornament. The lace is set in full ruffles around the bottom and in the position, and a fringe of jet is at the ends of the tab fronts. The lace is carried flung over the fronts and sleeves.

This illustration also furnishes two models in spring millinery: a round hat and a straw bonnet, trimmed with ribbon and flowers. The above is one of Harper's Bazar's models.

Men's Clothing.

Large easy fitting clothes in English styles are worn by men of fashion. Coats are made to be open lower and are worn open—not tightly buttoned—being turned back to show the vest its whole length. Vests are also cut lower, showing something of the shirt bosom next the scarf, and are single breasted, with a collar. Trousers are wider, and are nearly straight.

Business and traveling suits are made of Scotch chevrons in checks and stripes. These include sack coats, also the three buttoned cutaway coat, called a walking coat. Morning suits, which, in spite of their name, may be worn on almost any occasion in the day time, in the afternoon as well as the morning, are made with a three buttoned cutaway coat of black diagonal. The vest may be of the same or of some fancy material, while the trousers are colored and in well-defined stripes or plaids. The frock coat is retained for dignified occasions, such as day weddings and the like. The newest dress coats have a rolled collar made without a break, to correspond with that of the waistcoat, and are faced with corded silk. The trousers are wider, but not so wide as those of other suits. The waistcoat may be of the black diagonal cloth or of black satin, or of white silk or satin; the silk vests have a vine of fine embroidery along the collar and edging the fronts.

Shirt bosoms are cut wider this season on account of the lower cut vests. Those of plain linen laid in three or four thicknesses are most used for general wear, but there are also more fanciful bosoms for day shirts made of pique, with a fine embroidered line of dots or leaves down the middle, which is also repeated on the cuffs, while others have small all over designs of embroidery in colors. Porcelain shirts are worn with white collars. Dress shirts for evening are of fine linen or pique, made quite plain or with a slender line of very fine needle work down the middle, and are fastened by two studs, which are usually of white enamel or of Roman gold. The fashionable collars have the points broken and turned back flatly, or else they are mere standing bands with a small space open at the throat. Cuffs are square cornered, with the edges meeting, and are fastened by small linked sleeve buttons.

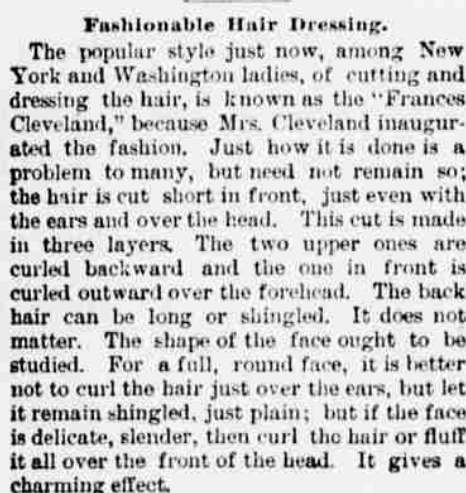

Scarves and neckties of very delicate colors are fashionable for day wear. For midsummer wear are white linen and white batiste scarves with colored dots or figures embroidered all over them, and there are also China crapes. The white tie for evening dress is of fine lawn, perfectly plain, and very narrow, only about seven-eighths of an inch in width.

Fashionable Hair Dressing.

The popular style just now, among New York and Washington ladies, of cutting and dressing the hair, is known as the "Frances Cleveland," because Mrs. Cleveland inaugurated the fashion. Just how it is done is a problem to many, but need not remain so; the hair is cut short in front, just even with the ears and over the head. This cut is made in three layers. The upper ones are curled backward and the one in front is curled outward over the forehead. The back hair can be long or shingled. It does not matter. The shape of the face ought to be studied. For a full, round face, it is better not to curl the hair just over the ears, but let it remain shingled, just plain; but if the face is delicate, slender, then curl the hair or fluff it all over the front of the head. It gives a charming effect.

Accessories for the Toilet.

There are many pleasing and inexpensive accessories to the toilet, by the aid of which one may render a plain costume dressy, and vary the monotony of a limited number of dresses.

TOILET ACCESSORIES.

The figures in the cut are described in Demorest's as rosettes made of ribbon about an inch wide, and now so fashionable for decorative purposes. Those attached to the bow of index ribbon for the hair are of the narrowst width, and a pretty combination for the purpose would be pale pink rosettes on a pale blue bow, or vice versa. For the collar and sleeve a wider ribbon is used, and the same ribbon is sewed inside, about a quarter of an inch showing beyond the edge. One illustration shows the method of attaching a safety pin to the back of the rosette so that it can be attached and removed at pleasure. Individual taste can be gratified in the selection of ribbons; all kinds are fashionably used in this way, and very pretty effects are sometimes produced by the use of two colors or the introduction of velvet with satin or faille.

THE RED SEA

EXPLANATORY NOTES BY S. I. CURTISS, PH. D., D. D.

Lesson IX of the International Series (Second Quarter), for Sunday, May 29. Text of the Lesson, Ex. xiv, 19-31. Golden Text, Isa. xliii, 2.

Death of the First Born—The destroyer passed through the land. In every home of the Egyptians the eldest son was suddenly stricken at midnight, from the firstborn of Pharaoh to the captive in the dungeon. The land resounded with piercing shrieks from one end to the other. All was panic and confusion. Both king and people, overcome with grief and fear, pressed the Israelites to leave in haste, and gladly gave them, in response to their first demands, "Jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment."

The Israelites, who had had time to prepare during the preceding four days, formed in a great procession, which kept growing as they went on, until there were 60,000 men, besides women and children and a mixed multitude.

Moses' Difficult Task—Never was intrusted to any man a more difficult task than that which was committed to Moses in the leadership of this multitude of slaves. Nothing less than the displays of God's miraculous power, which are recorded in the history which precedes and follows, could have enabled him to control such a people.

Whether were they going? To the land of Canaan. They knew not that the bones of that generation were to bleach in the wilderness. We cannot determine precisely what course they took. It may be that they began their march on the well known road to the land of the Philistines. God, however, did not design that they should enter Canaan this way. They were likely to be intercepted by the soldiers of the line of fortifications then extending, as Elbers believes, from Pelusium, on the Mediterranean, to Migdol, near the head of the Red sea. Even if they succeeded in passing them they would be exposed to the attack of the Philistines in front and of the Egyptians in the rear. Moses was therefore directed to lead them by the way of the wilderness south to the Red sea. It was necessary that Israel should be trained in the wilderness in a moral, military, civil and religious school before they could be fitted for life in Canaan. Indeed, they had to learn almost everything that is needful for a nation.

The Pursuit—According to Egyptian usage every other activity should have been laid aside for at least seventy days (Gen. i, 3) that the people might devote themselves to mourning. But a most extraordinary event had occurred—over 2,000,000 of slaves who had contributed greatly to the prosperity of the country were leaving it with untold wealth. Pharaoh, therefore, who is believed by most Egyptian scholars to have been Memphoth, although he had lost the crown prince, was impelled by every consideration of interest to disregard this long period of mourning and to pursue the Israelites. He therefore set out with 600 chosen chariots, besides others, perhaps, of an inferior sort, in pursuit of the Israelites, who he believed were shut up in the wilderness (Ex. xiv, 3).

We may well imagine how terrified the Hebrews were when they saw the well trained army of Egypt coming against them. Probably they had no military experience. With bitter sarcasm they ask Moses if it was because there were no graves in Egypt (the land of tombs) that he had led them away to die in the wilderness. They thought, therefore, that it would have been far better for them to die as slaves in Egypt than to perish in the wilderness; but God had other plans for them.

THE LESSON.

The Pillar of Cloud (vs. 19, 20)—The angel of Jehovah had been leading Israel in a pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night. He now goes behind them and interposes the pillar between the Israelites and the Egyptians, which is light for God's chosen people, but darkness for the Egyptians.

The Miracle (vs. 21)—The Israelites now come at evening to the head of the Red sea. Death, to the human eye, seems to be before them and death is behind them. But Moses, in accordance with the divine command, stretches out his hand over the sea. A strong east wind, lasting all night, lashes the waters away from the sands and leaves a dry path, the miracle here does not seem to consist so much in the means used as perhaps in the exact adaptation of natural means to open a way for the Israelites at the right time.

Vs. 22, 23. The people recognized God's hand, and whatever fears they may have had, took this as the only means of escape. It is not necessary for us to suppose that the waters rose up in a heap on the right hand and the left, but that there was perhaps a pathway between the northern part of the Red sea and the adjoining Bitter lakes lying just above, which served as a rampart. (Compare Nahum iii, 8.)

The Egyptians in their eagerness did not seem to foresee the possible danger of pursuing the Israelites. They followed close on the rear of the fleeing hosts. The narrative does not definitely say that Pharaoh joined in the pursuit, although it might seem so. We know two things about Memphoth; that he took good care not to expose himself to too great danger, and that he died in his bed.

It must have been an awful night for the Israelites. Women were screaming and children crying as they fled quickly before the advancing host.

Deliverance (vs. 24, 25)—But in the morning, when perhaps the hearts of the Israelites were beginning to faint, deliverance came. God appeared to terrify the Egyptians. He is spoken of as looking on them through the pillar of cloud. Whether this means, as some think, that the dazzling light of the pillar of fire smote on their faces, we do not know. He took off their chariot wheels, or perhaps better, as some versions read, bound them (Revised Version, margin), so that they would not turn. It was then that the Egyptians felt the hand of God and gave way to fear, proposing to flee because God was fighting for Israel.

Destruction of the Egyptians (vs. 27, 28)—At the Lord's command Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and it returned to its wonted flow (Revised Version, margin). In vain the Egyptians sought to flee. On came the roaring tide and covered them in the waters, so that there did not remain one.

Vs. 29, 30. The author once more tells how Israel passed through the sea, and how, when the morning dawned, they saw the bodies of the Egyptians which had been washed upon the shore.

V. 31. Israel recognized God's hand in this great deliverance; they feared him and believed in the Lord and in his servant Moses. This was an important result; but we shall see from the subsequent history how easily they forgot God, and even the great service which their heroic leader had rendered. Nothing less than such a great deliverance could make an adequate impression on the minds of an undisciplined and ignorant people.

POINTS TO BE REMEMBERED.
1. When God bids us go forward we should obey, although to human sight the sea is in front and the enemy behind.
2. A miracle may take place not only through the suspension of natural laws, but also in accordance with them, although the result produced is extraordinary. God's power is supreme in either case.

3. The path which through faith in God leads his people to deliverance, may through presumption lead their enemies to death.
4. It is said by some that it makes no difference what a man believes in if he is only sincere. The Israelites, believing in God's word to Moses, were saved. The Egyptians, sincerely believing that they were in the right way, were lost.
5. We should be sure that we are in the path of God's appointment and then go ahead.—Sunday School World.

Saved his Life.

Mr. D. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., says he was, for many years, badly afflicted with Pthisis, also D abcess; the pains were almost unendurable and would sometimes almost throw him into convulsions. He tried Elber's Bitters and got relief from the first bottle and after taking six bottles, was entirely cured, and had gained in weight eight pounds. Says he, "I sincerely believe he would have died, had it not been for the relief afforded by Elber's Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by D. L. Loriaux."

DeKalb's Mayor, A. S. Jackson, has been quite ill during the past week, but is now greatly improved.

A GREAT MISTAKE

has heretofore been made in the treatment of rheumatism, neuralgia, and nervous or sick headache. This is evidenced by the failure on the part of thousands of sufferers to find relief, even though they have exhausted the skill of various physicians and tried numerous so-called remedies. To such Athlophoros is offered as a safe, sure, and quick cure. Its success has been phenomenal, and yet it is not surprising because it will do as this is claimed for it. The Athlophoros Co. will gladly refer any who desire to make an investigation to reliable parties who have been cured by it.

J. P. Mallette, of the Mallette & Raymond Manuf. Co., No. 329 South Canal St., Chicago, Ill., says: "My wife has been a great sufferer from neuralgia for a long while, but a half bottle of Athlophoros cured her so that she has not suffered any since. When it was first recommended to her, she would not get it as she was always opposed to taking any kind of patent medicines. But as the treatment she was under gave her no relief I insisted on her trying Athlophoros. After taking a half bottle the neuralgia was gone and has not returned since."

Decatur Ill.

I have been afflicted with rheumatism for several years. During the past winter I was stricken with a very severe attack, rendering me almost helpless and confining me to my bed. I tried various medicines and was prescribed for by physicians with no avail. Finally I was induced to try Athlophoros. I was relieved and cured so quickly that words could not tell my surprise. I do not hesitate in recommending it to any one suffering with that painful complaint, rheumatism. A. M. BLANKEN, Cor. Union and Green Sts.

Every doctor should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are required.

Good Live Agents with small capital, to handle an article which sells at $1.00 per bottle, are offered from five to fifteen dollars cash. For particulars apply to TRUESDALE & CO., 100 N. Dearborn, Ill.
